Andrew specialises in commercial litigation, international arbitration and dispute resolution. He has extensive experience acting for and advising clients in relation to complex and high value disputes, typically with a cross-border element. Andrew previously practised in both London and Australia with a major international firm, and holds postgraduate qualifications in both applied finance and international dispute resolution.

Andrew has experience litigating in jurisdictions throughout the world, as well as conducting institutional and ad hoc arbitrations under a variety of different rules (including ICC, LCIA, AAA and UNCITRAL). Prior to joining Campbells in January 2014, Andrew practised at DLA Piper in both Australia (2006 – 2009) and London (2009 – 2013). In London, Andrew specialised in international dispute resolution with a particular focus on international arbitration. He has extensive experience coordinating and leading teams in major, complex and high value disputes. He has particular expertise advising clients in respect of investment fund and other financial services disputes (especially claims against administrators and custodians), professional negligence claims and a broad range of contractual disputes. His clients have included foreign governments, major banks, leading professional services firms and other multinationals spanning a number of sectors.
